Reflections with Pastor Scott

Advent: Learning to Keep Awake

"Beware, keep alert; for you do not know when the time will come." — Mark 13:33

As we enter the season of Advent, we begin a journey that is about much more than counting down the days until Christmas. Advent is a season of waiting, watching, hoping, and preparing. It invites us to slow down amid the busyness of the season and pay attention to the ways God is at work in our lives and in the world around us.

In the Gospel reading for the First Sunday of Advent, Mark 13:24–37, Jesus gives his disciples a simple but challenging instruction: "Keep awake!" In a culture that skips Advent and pours out Christmas starting in October, this might seem like an unusual passage to begin with in December. We might expect to hear about angels, shepherds, or the baby Jesus in the manger. Instead, we hear Jesus calling his followers to remain alert and attentive, reminding them that they do not know when God will act, but they are called to live in expectation.

Perhaps this is exactly where Advent needs to begin.

Advent reminds us that our faith is not simply about remembering something that happened long ago in Bethlehem. It is also about looking forward with hope to what God is still doing and will yet do. We celebrate Christ's coming into the world, but we also anticipate Christ's presence among us today and God's promised future, when all things will be made new.

The invitation to "keep awake" is not a call to live anxiously or fearfully. Rather, it is an invitation to live with open eyes and open hearts. It means noticing the places where love is needed, recognizing opportunities to offer kindness, standing alongside those who are struggling, and looking for signs of hope even in difficult circumstances. It means refusing to become so consumed by our routines, worries, and distractions that we miss the presence of God in our midst.

Advent also reminds us that waiting is not passive. While we wait, we prepare. We prepare our hearts, our homes, and our communities to receive Christ anew. Through prayer, worship, generosity, reconciliation, and acts of compassion, we make room for God's light to shine through us.

As we light the candles of the Advent wreath in the coming weeks, may each flame remind us of the hope, peace, joy, and love that Christ brings into the world. And may we remember that these are not simply ideas to celebrate, but gifts we are called to embody and share.

So, as the season begins, let us resist the temptation to rush too quickly toward Christmas. Instead, let us embrace the gift of waiting. Let us watch, listen, hope, and prepare. May we be awake to God's presence, attentive to the needs of our neighbors, and ready to welcome Christ wherever he comes among us.

Come, Lord Jesus. We are watching, we are waiting, and we are preparing the way.

Continuing the journey of faith with you,
Pastor Scott

From the Bishop: December 2026

As a little girl, I remember the excitement of Christmas Eve – knowing there were presents under the tree waiting for me to open in the morning. And, truthfully, I was never disappointed. The gifts were always wonderful. But, of course, the true Christmas gifts are not presents but presence. The presence of Jesus among us – incarnate, embodied, enfleshed. Emmanuel. God-With-Us. As we hear in the first chapter of John, "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us."

Isn't it a mystery that Jesus took on skin and bone, hunger and weariness, laughter and tears – for us and for the world? Isn't it a wonder that Jesus, Word made Flesh, drew near enough for us to touch, to hold, to know – and for us to be touched, to be held, to be known? Isn't it a miracle that the One who breathed life into the universe became human and healed those others rejected, fed those others left hungry, and welcomed those others despised? Isn't it the most precious gift that, through Jesus, God gives God's very self to the world because God so loves the world?

At the heart of Christmas is the presence of Jesus.

Stop for a moment. Read that sentence again. And, if necessary, read it one more time.

I confess, I sometimes forget the mystery, the wonder, the miracle, the gift of Christmas. I get caught up in the lists, the things I think I should be doing, the tinsel-joy I'm supposed to be spreading, the responsibilities that seem to multiply, and the grief that somehow feels more acute this time of year. In the midst of Christmas, I forget the greatest present of all – the presence of Jesus.

Yet the gift, the presence, is still here. And, thankfully, even if we forget, even if we mess up, even if we are messy, it doesn't change this amazing truth. After all, we are promised that this gift is given freely. We receive this gift because God loved humanity enough to become human and to dwell with us – always – as forgetful or messy or messed up we might be.

And with this gift, we respond to God's calling – to live as Christ's body in the world. To live generously, to love our neighbors, to share what we have, to stand alongside those who are vulnerable, and to be present with those who need us. As we hear in Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, "Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it."

As I travel throughout the synod, I am so grateful for God's presence amongst us. I see how you are embodying Christ's love in tangible, everyday ways: feeding the hungry, welcoming the stranger, laughing together, praying together, building together. Every day ministry is happening. Why? Because God chose human flesh as a dwelling place, and in response to this gift, you are the living body of Christ – making God's grace visible, touchable, and real.

I thank God that in the incarnation, God's love took on flesh. And I thank you, as the body of Christ, for how God has called you to make Christ's love visible in the world. May we rejoice and delight in the present of Christ's presence this Christmas … and always.

In Christ's Incarnate Hope, Peace, Joy, and Love, Bishop Shelley Bryan Wee | bishop@lutheransnw.org

Sometimes you end up easily where you need to be, and sometimes it takes a while. Steve Zielke has experienced both. Born and raised in Baltimore, Maryland in a mixed faith household – Lutheran dad and Unitarian mom – Steve valued both but gravitated toward Unitarians as he became a teenager. He and his questions were readily accepted by his mom's community. Not so much by folks in his dad's community. He came west to UW for college and stayed. He studied architecture but found construction a better fit. His job as a superintendent for high-end residential construction employs his multitude of talents and his passion for creating beautiful spaces.

Fast forward 20+ years from UW and Steve was searching for a faith community in his Columbia City neighborhood with the acceptance he had experienced in the Unitarian church and the structure he had experienced in the Lutheran church. He decided to give the Lutherans another chance and visited Columbia City Church of Hope (COH). The pastor was a woman; COH welcomed all as a reconciling in Christ congregation; the congregation was diverse in race, gender, and age; the worship included the right balance of freedom and structure to fit his needs; he had found a home at the first neighborhood church he tried. Hallelujah!

Church of Hope was just as blessed to welcome Steve as Steve was to be welcomed. With his connections and experience in the world of construction, Steve has been an integral part of COH's journey to replace their falling apart building with 87 units of affordable family housing, an early childhood learning center, and a new church home. The housing part of the project has been built and is run by El Centro de la RaZa. Along with architectural services provided by Mark Wilerson (Pastor Darla's neighbor), Jay Edgerton, synod property expert, and fellow COH member Marinko Kordich, Steve has stewarded the project. The four-person team is now in the thick of the work of finishing the interior space. A huge challenge has been increasing costs due to circumstances beyond their control. At one point, there was the possibility that El Centro de la Rasa would finish the space for them, which would have meant being a Sunday only tenant, rather than a full-time owner of the space. He is grateful they stayed the course so COH could both control the design and resume their role as a community "living room," welcoming back 12-step groups, community organizations, live music events, and more after completion. Current work includes framing, and getting the next set of permits -- ductwork and the fire suppression system. The experience has been so positive and rewarding that Steve may consult on similar future projects...after COH's project is complete, and he takes a much-needed break! Working full time and helping coordinate a project of this scope as a volunteer has been challenging, but he has no regrets. Envisioning the day when Bethlehem Lutheran's mission, adopted by COH, comes to fruition brings him great joy. (You can find more Information about the project here.)

Steve has most future contractors lined up, but if you know of a finish carpentry, or painting business willing to donate services or give COH a discount, he would love to hear from you (Szielke@schultzmiller.com). You can also support the project by helping to close their funding gap – go here to offer your financial support: https://www.lutheransnw.org/news/support-church-of-hope

The ELCA GOOD GIFTS program is one great way for us to use our resources to help those in need. Donations to the ELCA Good Gifts Program support long-term, sustainable solutions that last for more than a few days or weeks. They can keep on giving for years to come. More than 90% of your gifts directly support program work. Less than 10% is used for administration and fundraising.

GOD'S GLOBAL BARNYARD

Gifts of an animal also include education, training and resources to support people receiving animals.

COW $50 for a share or $500 for the complete cow.

One dairy cow can produce 5 gallons of milk each day. Nutritious milk from a cow helps ensure that children grow up healthy and strong.

PIGLET $40

A pig in the pen is like money in the bank. Within months, a tiny piglet grows to weigh over 200 pounds.

GOAT $50

Goats are known for surviving in some of the world's harshest environments. This makes them especially valuable for families living in dry, drought-prone climates where it's tough to raise other animals.

ROOSTER & FLOCK of CHICKS $25

A rooster and chicks can provide a supply of protein-rich meals and help a family grow a small business.

SEEDS & GARDENING TOOLS $50

New tools and equipment – along with seeds and comprehensive agricultural training – can help a family start their own small garden, improve their daily nutrition and increase their earning power.

WATER

Clean water is one of the most powerful ways to make a change in the world.

SAFE-WATER ACCESS $2500 or $250 for a share of a complete project.

With simple well or spring box, as many as 500 families gain access to clean, safe water. Sanitation improves. Everyone is healthier and stronger.

IRRIGATION SYSTEM $100 for a portion.

Irrigation systems, coupled with training and maintenance, can make some of our most vulnerable farmers and their families more resilient to the impacts of climate change and give them the tools to protect their water supply.

The above are just some of the gift-giving options. For more info check out elca.org/goodgifts or check the ELCA Good Gift Catalogs which are available at the church. Together, we do more than we could ever do alone to fight hunger and transform lives.

LUTHERAN WORLD RELIEF

Thank you

Camano Lutheran Church
850 Heichel Rd
Camano Island, WA 98282-8804

Dear Friends,

As a faithful servant of Christ, you are a blessing to your neighbors around the world. Thank you for your gift of $100.00 to Lutheran World Relief given through the Northwest Washington Synod of the ELCA.

People we serve are often surprised that someone across the world cared enough to help them in their time of need. Of course, everyone appreciates a hot meal or warm quilt as they navigate the aftermath of a disaster. But your compassion is what really touches their hearts. After all, it is wonderful to know that you are loved, isn't it?

John chapter 4 says, "We love because he first loved us." I often feel closest to God when I follow him in loving others and making sacrifices for their well-being. I know my cup will not run dry because he loves me, and because your love for your neighbors inspires me. It is an honor to serve alongside you in this mission to end poverty, working in tandem as the hands and feet of Christ … until your love reaches every neighbor.

With deepest gratitude,

Ambassador Daniel V. Speckhard
President and CEO
